shown that a forked hazel wand is a better guide to hidden mineral wealth than anything else yet known.

Some years ago a man named Mallory took up his residence near Yreka, and commenced wandering through the mountains with a forked stick in his hands. Many people thought he was crazy, but others of more experience made known his object, so that his actions were watched with considerable interest. At last the working of the divining rod indicated to him that a saddle shaded bed of silver ore was snugly wrapped up in an adjoining hill, and without any other encouragement he commenced to drive a tunnel to it. For seven years he labored patiently, satisfied that his simple instrument, guided by the mysterious laws of attraction, could not be at fault, and last week his perseverance was rewarded by striking the golden pommel of the saddle, the first proof of the immense treasures concealed there. The rock, crushed in a mortar, has yielded an average of $17 to the pound, and the rest of the mass in sight is apparently asrich. The curiosities of mining would form a very readable book, especially that portion of it describing the manner in which most of our richest leads have been discovered. rom the Charleston Courier, 12th.]

From the Charleston Courier, 12th.]

The United States steamship of war Quinnebaugh, Commander E. Barrett, arrived at this port yesterdey morning from St. Thomas, in thirteen days.

The chief feature of interest, however, connected with the arrival of the vessel, is the presence on board of a number of those aftifortunate emigrants, who, at the close of the war, were induced to leave their homes with a view of bettering their shattered fortunes. There are on board of the vessel thirty-four persons, men, women and children, who left the South at the close of the war, and sharving condition. They were taken on board and farnished with transportation to the nearest United States port, by order of the President of the United States. Their forforn condition should be a terrible warning to those who are looking to emigration. They will be disembarked to day, and will be farnished with transportation to their homes. Dr. Lebby, the health officer of the port, Rev. W. B. Yates and the officers of the vessel have oben unceasing in their grant there wants, and as these unfortunate people belong to our sunny South, they have always been noted, will come for ward and subscribe aid for the sufferers. Subscriptions left at this office will be deveted to the purpose.

We are informed by the Captain that he left thirty-seven persons and three families at Pernambuco, and four or five f ing and destitute condition, but who were detained by the Brazilian government refusing to grant them the necessary passports. This fact will be promptly reported at Washington, and the steps necessary to free these persons taken

A Hint to Lovers of French Wine.

A good story is told of an American traveling in Paris. Having occasion to take a bath, his physician recommended a wine bath. In the employ of the establishment there was a colored man whom he had known in America, and of him he inquired how they could give a wine bath for seventy-five cents. "Why, massa, said the negro, "that wine has been in the bath room for one week, and you is the thirty-eight person that bathed in it." "Well I suppose they throw it away when they are done with it." "Oh no, master; they send it down stairs for the poor people, who bashe for twenty-five cents." "And then what do they do with it." "Bottle it up and send it to America, where they sell it for French wine." A Hint to Lovers of French Wine.

The San Francisco Bulletin is responsible for this: "A day or two ago a child was born in the suburbs of the city with two heads. One of the heads was so attached to the body that, in the opinion of the attending physician, it was neither useful nor ornamental. He therefore determined to amputate it, and did so successfully. The child is still living, is doing well—better than could be expected under the circumstances."
